

Dan M. Healan

Search Committee Chair and Professor of Anthropology

Dan M. Healan is Professor of Anthropology, Tulane University. He received his Ph.D. in Anthropology with a specialization in Mesoamerican Archaeology from the University of Missouri. He has directed archaeological field projects in Tula, Hidalgo and Zinapécuaro, Michoacán, and served as a technical consultant for projects in Central Mexico, Western Mexico, and Central Veracruz. His interests and areas of specialization include lithic technology, quantitative analytical methods, pre-Columbian urbanism, and prehistoric household organization. His current research involves pre-Columbian obsidian exploitation.

Professor Healan may be reached at healan@tulane.edu.